

#3- (green arrows on map) Follow Eckhardt Avenue as it crosses a number of streets, including Martin Street, Main Street and Government Street. Eckhardt Avenue ends just past Government Street, turning to the left and becoming Haven Hill Road.

Although the name of the road keeps changing, the road itself is easy to follow as it is the major road. At the end of Haven Hill Road, a short section, the road to Naramata takes a sharp right onto Johnson Road, changing name once again after a few blocks and taking a sharp left, to Upper Bench Road where you will pass Upper Bench Winery and Creamery (great cheese) and Misconduct Wine Company.

Upper Bench Road has a stop sign as it intersects McMillan Avenue. You will need to turn right on McMillan Avenue passing the Township 7 Winery on your right. Immediately after Township 7, the road veers to the left becoming Naramata Road. The road is marked with Wine Route signs.

Follow Naramata Road as it winds through vineyards and orchards. You will pass a number of the wineries that make up the Naramata Bench Wineries. In succession, you will go by La Frenz, Red Rooster, Ruby Blues, Hillside Estate, Laughing Stock, and Lake Breeze just to name a few.

As you near Naramata, a large wooden sign for the Village of Naramata will be on the right side of the road. The road forks soon after the sign. The left side of the fork is Robinson Avenue, which heads down into Naramata Village while North Naramata Road is on the right, in the direction of Chute Lake. (See the dark green line on the map above.)

Follow North Naramata Road for a short distance (1 block) until you see Smethurst Road on your right. Smethurst Road is a bit hard to spot, but there is a highway sign for Forgotten Hill B&B approximately 200 ft. (60 m) before the road that lets you know it's coming up.

Follow Smethurst Road up the hill. You will pass the Nichol Farm Winery and Daydreamer Wines on your left as you head up the hill. Smethurst Road is an old road that coils up the hill side. In parts it's quite narrow so be careful of oncoming traffic.

As you climb up Smethurst, you will reach the famed KVR trail, the old track bed of the Kettle Valley Railroad that used to serve most of the southern part of British Columbia and is now part of the Trans Canada Trail. At this time, the paved section of Smethurst ends just after the parking lot (on your right) for visitors to the trail. Continue heading up the hill on Smethurst Road, going over the metal slats of the cattle guard.

At this point the road, although maintained, is a compacted gravel road. Depending on the volume of traffic it receives, and when it was last graded, it can be either smooth or washer board in some sections. Whatever the condition of the road, the turn onto Cottonwood Lane is less than 300 meters (1000 ft.) and on your left. There is a street sign for Cottonwood Lane on the upper left side of the road.

Turn left on Cottonwood Lane, also a gravel road, and follow it for another 280m (900 feet), past the first house, which is on the left. Cottonwood Lane ends at the entrance of Cottonwood Estate. At this point the road is paved.

An intercom stand is on your left as you approach the black gates of the property.

Your Reservation Confirmation e-mail contained a Gate Access Code; please enter it on the right-side intercom key pad, above the address "3960" Cottonwood Lane.

Should you encounter a problem, press the CALL button on the other (left-side) intercom and someone will let you in the property.

Once past the gates, please follow the signs for Forgotten Hill. Keep going past the first house — on your right soon after getting into the property.

Forgotten Hill Bed & Breakfast is 500 m (1,640 ft.) from the entrance gates.

Welcome to Forgotten Hill at Cottonwood Estate
